

Seton Healthcare Family

History

The Seton Healthcare Family was founded in by the Daughters of Charity in Austin in 1902, after a group of citizens asked the Daughters to build a hospital to care for the sick. This 40-bed hospital, originally the Seton Infirmary, would eventually lead to the building of Seton Medical Center in 1975. In the last century, Seton Healthcare Family has grown from one hospital to a network of more than 90 clinical locations across Central Texas.

Formed by St. Vincent de Paul and St. Louise de Marillac, the Daughters dedicate themselves to expressing God's love through services to the sick, poor and destitute.

Reinventing Health Care to Serve Patients

Seton has a new vision for health care: a person-centered model that is safer, more efficient and produces better results. We are an active member of the accountable care movement that is reshaping the delivery of care and its cost curve. Seton is investing in technologies and staff to help patients manage their chronic conditions – asthma, congestive heart failure, diabetes and the like – and achieve a better quality of life while reducing the cost of health care.

Medical Education and Research

With the University of Texas System and the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, Seton is advancing graduate medical education and translational research. UTSW offers 11 residency and five fellowship programs at Seton facilities. The Seton/UTSW Clinical Research Institute in Austin opened in 2012. Seton will build a modern teaching hospital near a medical school to be constructed on the University of Texas at Austin campus. These initiatives are expected to increase the supply of physicians and other caregivers in Central Texas, and to foster leading edge therapies. Commercialization of some treatments will propel economic development in the region.

Seton's Clinical Education Center at Brackenridge provides interdisciplinary training to nurses, physicians and therapists in a state-of-the-art teaching facility equipped with high-fidelity mannequins and fully functioning skill labs.

Clinical Achievement

Seton has earned a reputation as a leader in clinical quality. The Seton Labor and Delivery service, the first recipient of the Texas Health and Human Services Quality Award, is a model for other hospitals. For two decades, the Seton Heart Specialty Care and Transplant Center has performed heart transplants and now offers ventricular assist devices (VAD) to advanced heart failure patients who do not qualify for transplants. Seton medical centers are international destinations for clinicians the world over, striving to improve the quality and accessibility of care and services.

Spirituality

Seton, a Catholic ministry, is a member of Ascension Health, the nation's largest nonprofit system. Chaplains are available to provide spiritual and emotional support to patients and their families. Seton hosts an accredited interfaith clinical pastoral education program.
